Special to The New York Times BEIRUT, Lebanon, Monday, April 12-Lebanese leftists last ight decided to extend a sbaky armed truce until the end of this month to permit the election of a new president, and urged the withdrawal of Syr-

The decision to extend the 0-day truce came a day after 90 members of Parliament—in a Syrian-backed step to move the year-old civil war between Moslem and Christian leftists and Christian rightists toward a political solution-approved a constitutional amendment that

It also attacked an American mediation mission as a "plot" against the leftist and Palestinian movements, and asserted that clashes might erupt hetween Syrian troops and leftists and Palestinians. Europe's Leaders Take a Gloomy View of U.S. R

By FLORA LEWIS

PARIS, April 11 - Western Europe's leaders have settled into a state of gloom in the belief that the United States is retreoching in world affairs, a mood deepened by their own inability to act together.

This was the mood when Common Market heads of government discussed interna-tional affairs in Luxembourg early this month, according to participants and other wellinformed officials.

The sense of frustration was intense, they said, not only because there are no prospects now for European unity but also because they feel that, while the might of the Soviet Unioo is growing, the United States is leaving a vacuum that Europe cannot fill.

Opposition leaders and other politicians bave other views. Not even all the leaders agree on what should be done, nor even on the extent of the trouble facing Europe. But they did agree that none of them could really do much more than attend to mending domestic fences and hope for the best.

has decided to make a major theme of his election campaign the fact that Germany is much better off than its neighbors, a strategy that effectively prevents him from speaking for Europe or taking a European initiative that would have a chance of approval by his partners.

The mood of the leaders may have been intensified and exaggerated by their own inability to act together, and by what one called the "blithering absence" of America from the world scene in this election year. This mood may dissipate as recovery progresses and events impose reaction.

But at their meeting, the nine heads of government were "morose," an official said, as they discussed détente, Eastwell west relations, Africa, the Middle East, Lebanon and other interoational political problems at a dinner held between two fruitless formal sessions devoted to European questions.

CHIANG SAEN, Thailand-Each morning, as he has for the last five months, Chao Sarn rises at dawn, pads across the dirt floor of his straw-thatched hut and out the door, feeds his two black piglets rooting in a small puddle, then sits down, smokes his water pipe and

It is a touchy situation for everyone involved. No other country wants to accept any large numbers of these ref-ugees, although the United States Congress is now considering a request to admit 11,000. And for most of the Yaos in Chiang Saen it is an impractical proposition.

OIL SEARCH BEGINS OFF NEW ENGLAND

But stratagraphic tests of the geology of the ocean's bottom. coordinated from an abandoned Navy construction battalion base bere, have already begun. The tests are the first in a series of events that are bring-ing the possibility of oil drilling closer to reality.

The oil companies will bid lease tracts scattered through the ocean area totaling about 1.2 million acres—about one-tenth of what they originally sought—selected by the In-terior Department.

The Federal Government expects to realize some $900 mil lion from the drilling leases, according to figures contained in President Ford's budget message.

The bids would be guided by each company's examination of the raw data produced in the current tests — primarily oags of scraps and shall brought up by the drill.

The leasing originally sched-uled for August, will probably oot take place until fall, be-cause state and local officials are behind schedule in preparing the preliminary report oo the project's impact on the en-vironment. Hearings on the final impact report are required before the sale can take place.

Depressed Towns Visited

Oil company representatives and their allies have been visiting depressed seacoast towns like New Bedford, which has the highest unmployment rate in Massachusetts, and the areas of Rhode Island deeply affected by the shutting of Navy instal-lations. They are telling local officials and businessmen that their ports are likely oil indus-try sites and that they would benefit from offshore drilling.

"It's been good to us," L. Wilsoo Trahin, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Morgan City, La. told New Bedford businessmer recently after enthusiastically outlining his town's nearly 30year connection with offshore

But the industry's arguments have been strongly opposed. Representative Gerry E. Studds, Democrat of Massachusetts, who represents the southeastern part of the state, has accused the Interior De-partment of duplicity and of reneging on a promise that the drilling tracts would he kept more than 50 miles from Cape Cod, the offshore islands and prime fishing and lobster-

Says Promise Broken

Despite the promise to the Massachusetts Congressional delegation in November, Mr. Studds says, the tract selection announced in January included two tracts much closer than 50 miles to Nantucket and an additional 19 tracts about 50 miles from various shores. The tes, he charged, also iocluded 30 tracts that are heavily fished and five other tracts over a high-yield lobstering area.

New England's fishing indus try, nearly ruined by huge so-phisticated foreign fleets, thought it had been given a reprieve in the form of the recently passed 200-mile fishing limit. The fishermeo oow fear that possible oil spills could destroy spawning grounds, that they will oot be able to trawl without getting entangled io the oil equipment and that they will not be able to compete with the oil companies for port space.

The oil industry, oo the other hand, contends that offshore drilling facilities are good for fishing forming, in effect, arti-ficial reefs that attract fish. Although New England is dependent on other areas for its oil and pays a higher price for it, a number of plans to build refineries or oilports here have been beaten back in recent years, largely due to envi-

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes. But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage. Except Vantage.

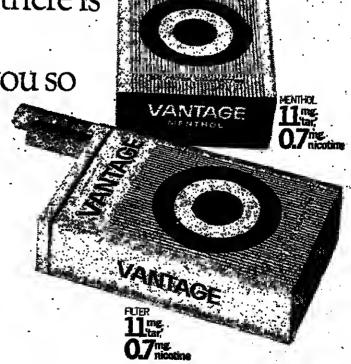

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar.'

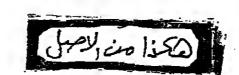

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.

Leaders of the United Auto Workers, who had a Carter endorsement in the works for the Michigan primary on May 18, decided on Friday to back off, Leonard Woodcock, the U.A.W. president, is still favorably disposed to Mr. Carter, but among the U.A.W. vice presidents, Ken Bannoo leans to Senator Jacksoo, Douglas Fraser prefers Mr.

Dinner Canceled Money, every candidate'a headache, is a major problem for the Carter campaign in Pennsylvania. A $1,000-per-person fund raiser planned for Wednesday evening in Philadelphia was canceled for lack of sponsors. "Frankly," said a Carter campaign officer, "we don't have any heavy hitters" in Pennsylvania in Pennsylvania

As a result of a Supreme Court ruling on campaign fi-nancing, Mr. Carter is now free to spend his own money without limit, and he has. been tiding over his cam-paign with substantial loans, including a $30,000 personal penses of a mail appeal for Representative Young of Georgia, Mr. Car-ter's closest ally among black politicians, stands by his statement, quoted in The New York Times on Friday, that he interpreted Jimmy Car-ter's remarks about "ethnic purity" as "a disaster for the campaign" and told the candidate as much when they conferred on the phone early Thursday morning.

Mr. Carter publicly dis-puted on Friday The Times's account of an interview with in a follow-up interview with Mr. Young in a follow-up interview yesterday said, "There's no question I did say originally I thought it would be a disaster for the campaign. All I could think of was George Roomey and brangwashing." Romney and 'brandwashing,'"
Mr. Young said, referring to the damage that Mr. Romoey, a candidate for the Re-publican presidential nomin-ation in 1968, did to his cam-paign by saying he had beeo misled by the official propaganda about the American efofrt io Vietnam. Mr. Carter was quoted in Friday afternoon's Cleveland Times article, "Andy assured me be absolotely did not to him." But Jody Powell, Mr. Mayor Maynard Jackson of Carter's press secretary, in- Atlanta is also expected to Carter's press secretary, in-sisted that Mr. Carter never said that sentence in his Friday morning conversation with Roy Meyers of the Cleveland press. And Mr. Meyers acknowledged that he could not find that remark in his notes or in his tape recording of the interview.

Mr. Carter did say that Mr. Young never used the word "disaster" in their Thursday morning telephone conversation: Mr. Young remembers their the state of the state making the general point. though perhaps in somewhat gantler language, By all accounts, Mr. Carter and Mr. Young did not speak to each other on Friday—about The Times article or anything

Meanwhile, Mr. Young, surveying reactions among black leaders and white liberal politicians, is no longer so sure that "ethnic purity" was Young said today that Cole-man Young the black mayor of Detroit, who has said he prefers Senator Humphrey or Senator Edward M. Keonomination, will still probably endorse Jimmy Carter endorse Mr. Carter in the Georgia primary—with an eye to getting Mr. Carter's support for his own re-election campaign next year.

Mr. Young also said today that Representative James Corman of California, coauthor of the pending Ken-nedy-Cormen health insur-ance bill, which Mr. Carrer has not yet endorsed, is still aclined to enlist as a Carter lelegate in the California prim rv on June 8. Finally. cisco, a California state assemblymao, is interested in helping Mr. Carter in the black community, Mr. Young

Better service to customers

From Day One, we've had faster run-through service. For example, we've already lopped 14 hours off some shipments from New York to Chicago.

We've cut the number of people that shippers have to deal with-from as many as three down to one.

Another source of better service: We've got a huge data processing operation. Five giant computers, 83 high-speed tape drives, 107 on-line disc files.

Which means we can tell a customer, within minutes, exactly where his cars are -at any time. Any day of the week.

The best alternative

Many observers agree that if ConRail can't make a go of it; the only alternative will be nationalization.

A bitter pill to swallow, as foreign taxpayers can testify. Taxpayers in some countries pay over $1 billion a year to cover the losses from railroads.

We'll do everything in our power not to let that happen. The last thing in the world America needs is more taxes.

Headed for success

You never know what whims the economy might have up its sleeve. But we've got a lot going for us.

Better use of cars, plus other efficiencies, should bring our cost savings to about $300 million by 1980. Basic growth in freight vol-

On that basis, our precarive is to start making a profit by 1980. We aren't promising miracles. We can't offset decades of neglect straight. But we have got a better way to run a railroad.

HOW DOES HARRY ROTHMAN

PO IT?

Any day, every day . . . you'll find-Rothman's clothing aisles thronged with customers. Maneyed men who demand the best. Men with modest incomes seeking quality bargains. What draws them all here? The answer is very simple.

We offer vast selections of America's finest national brands at fabulous discounts. You'll recognize them instantly, even without the labels. When, for example, you see a custom-quality $280 suit with a Rothman tag of just $159.50, you'll know it's a customquality $250 suit.

So don't just wonder how Harry Rothman does it. The fact is . . . he does do it. Special purchases of top-brand manufacturers . . . plus our low markup policy . . . make our discounts the real thing.

And that is why so many thousands of quality-minded men beat a path to our acre-sized store here on lower Fifth Avenue.

> The normally low voter turnout in black and Puerto Rican areas was particularly noticeable in the Democratic Presidential primary. Only some 7,400 voters turned out in the South Bronx 21st Congressional District and about 8,400 in the Bedford-Stryvesant 12th in Brooklyn. Most of the state's Congressional districts had votes in excess of 15.000.

When you bank with us, just $400 in a savings account will get you unlimited checking for only $1 a month.

We call our plan Super Checking. Just keep $400 in an interest earning savings account instead of the $500 some other major banks require, and you can write all the checks you want against your checking account for only $1 a month.

And now when you have Super Checking, you get even more benefits. Like lower loan rates and a choice of a regular savings account or a High Interest Passbook account. All in all, you'll find Super Checking offers some very solid advantages.

Even if you write only 3 checks a month, Super Checking can save you money.

If you're like most people with a checking account, you pay a monthly service charge, plus 10¢ or 15¢ for every check you write. And if you write a lot of checks, it's been costing you plenty. With Super Checking, however, your $1 monthly service charge covers an unlimited number of checks.

You can choose from four savings plans.

With Super Checking you can have a regular savings account with the convenience of withdrawals at any time. Or you can select one of our High Interest Passbook accounts. Should your savings balance fall below the $400 minimum at any time, a $3 service charge would be applied to your checking account for that month.

Save money on loans too, when you have Super Checking.

With Super Checking, should you ever need a loan, you can apply for a personal loan of up to $10,000 at 1/1% below our Annual Percentage Rate. And if you agree to have your payments deducted from your checking account, we'll deduct another 1/4%. That's a full 1/2% less than any major commercial bank in town.

You can even get overdraft protection.

When you open your Super Checking account, you can also apply for overdraft privileges which keep your checks from "bouncing" and even allows you to write yourself an instant loan.

Perhaps the major victim of the current campaign's new candor is Cornelia Wal-Jace, wife of the Alabama Governor, who said she was surprised and shocked that reporters and others were coostantly asking her about ber sex life with the Gover-oor, who has been paralyzed and in a wheel chair since an attempt on bis life in

Once a tireless and grega-rious campaigner, the 37-vear-old Mrs. Wallace said the biggest difference for her between the 1972 and 1976 campaigns was that she had lost her "enthusiasm" for the current campaign. She attrib-utes this to the intimate questions she is asked, her constant fears that someone may try again to take her husband's life, and her husband's poor showings in the primary elections.

'It was more fun when I was a child, honey," she said, sipping on a Coca-Cola"I had a lot of fun when my uncle ["Big Jim" Folsom] was Governor of Alabama. But nowadays, I find there is a lot of struggle among people who want to feel

Do personal questions about her life bother Mrs. Carter? "I've never been asked a question I couldn't answer." she said with a smile. "But I would never betray a confidence of my children."

One way that the current campaign differs from those past is that almost all of the wives are willing to campaign separately from their husbands. The exception is Cornelia Wallace, who says, "I'm exclusively with my husband. That's why I married the man."
Campaigning on her own has made a noticeably different woman of Helen Jackson. In 1972, she was timid, introverted, and reluctant to look an interviewer in the eye. Nowadays, on the campaign trail three days a week. usually with her own entourage, she has become self-confident and even assertive.

Gold in Look, Not in Cost

By RUTH ROBINSON

The idea behind the striking bracelets, collars and earrings that Diome Colle designs is to give the effect of gold and silver at a fraction of the cost. To this end brass and German silver (a coppernickel-zinc alloy) are substituted for precious metals.

Most of the hand-wrought pieces have a hammered or smooth finish, though semetimes hiss Cole combines the two in an abstract design. Occasionally she adds a satin stripe for textural contrast or a diagonal cutout for dramatic accent.

The designer says she hates iewelry to be at odds with the body. Some of her bracelets curve down over the hand and all of them can be bent to conform to the wrist, as can her collars to conform with the neck. Circular button earrings are rounded rather than flat and triangular pendants softened by a slight curve.

Miss Cole's pieces, all lacquered against tarnishing, can be obtained from Lord & Taylor. Bonwit Teller and Saks Fifth Avenue at prices ranging from $8 to $40. Earrings with 14-karat gold posts for pierced ears run a dollar or two more than ones with clios.

When Fran Stein and Tullah Kellman opened the Hired Hand two years ago their specialty was handmade gifts. They still carry such things as patchwork quilts and stuffed toys, but the emphasis has shifted to calico by the yard. Customers prefer to do their own thing, it seems those who don't, can have quilts, curtains those who don't, can have quins, curtains and piliows made to order.

Bolts and bolts of colorful calico prints—
150 different patterns in all—as well as solids and ginghams line the walls of the tiny shop at 1364 Lexington Avenuc, near 90th Street. There are 100 percent cottons and blends in 36-inch and 45-inch widths at $1.75 and $2.50 a yard, respectively.

The Hired Hand also has kits for making patchwork purses, tennis racquet covers and pillows and offers courses in hand natchwork. A series of six classes with two-neur weekly sessions is $40.

'This has been reflected in the high price of herring today. I remember when the best schmaltz herring on the market cost 10 cents. Today, in New York, the price for a prime Iceland schmaltz ranges from $1.50 to $2 (large) at Russ & Daughters on Houston Street; $1.69 at Scotty's on Essex Street and $1.78 at Zabar's on Broad-"The day is fast coming when the herring will be gooe forever. A world without herring is a prospect too horrible to contemplate. The moment has arrived to preserve the herring for future generations. "Herring lovers of the world arise and insist that the fishing fleets of the world go back to the old methods when fish were caught in nets. This gave young fish a fighting chance and did not leave the seas barren. The cod and haddock are also endangered species. By saving the horring their future, too, will be assured.

In view of this, Beverly Bluth of East Windsor, N.J.,

In the Old West, the villain who double-crossed his partner sometimes received a well-deserved bullet and was never forgiven. At the bridge table, the double-crosser occasionally earns forgiveness, as in the diagramed deal. And he or she is never shot, although the elderly Frenchwoman who was shot by her husband last year after a bridge-table quarrel might have been an exception.

The bridge double-crosser is a technical offender. He makes a limited bid, and then overrules his partner who may bave stretched his values fraction on the assumption that he will bave the final say.

In the diagramed auction from a women's pairs in the last New York tournament, South was content to play in two hearts. But when West persevered in diamonds and North strained to bid three hearts, South continued to game—a double-cross. Once she bad passed two bearts, indicating no game interest, she should not have bid over three hearts.

Regrets Double-Cross

South was Rita Rosenberg of Highland Park, N.J., and she regretted her double-cross when West led a high diamond and the dummy appeared. It seemed that she was doomed to lose two diamonds, one club and at least one spade. The defense would take the first two tricks in diamonds, after which it would not belp to make three spade tricks, which could be done if the suit broke evenly and West beld the jack. However, South saw a faint chance to show a profit by her double-cross. She hoped that West held exactly a doubleton ace of spades, exactly a doubleton ten of hearts, and was a routine follower of the second-hand-low rule-of-thumb.

West continued diamonds. and as East did not have the heart ten South was able to ruff in the closed hand. East should have ruffed with the eight, just in case West held the 10-9 doubleton of trumps, but it would not have helped ber. A low spade was led, and at this point an alert West would bave put up the ace, averting the long-term danger that threatened. But she routinely played low, and the queen was played from

41Years With the Wrong Persona

CAPTAIN GROWNUP, By Kit Reed 249 pages. Dutton, $8.85. At 41, Willard Michaels has reached a kind of existential menopause. He is mired between youth and age, too young to give up all ambition and too old to break the comfortable habit of failure. His failure has a boyish charm: it does not threaten anybody except his wife, Elena, who sees herself condemned to a lifetime of his selfdeprecating ironies. As far as she is concerned, irony is a male perversion, an eternal seminar on the vanity of human wishes. She doesn't find it gallant, as Michaels seems to. Very sensibly, sha throws him out. Nothing ages a woman's face faster than a wise, understanding smile. Also, Elena is old-fashioned: failure is not an aphrodisiac for her, but the reverse. And she certainly does not want to mother Michaels: he is much too unpromising a child.

Wounds Are Credentials

So, in "Captain Grownup," Michaels gives up his job as a newspaper reporter and becomes an English teacher in a hick town high school. His wounds are his credentials. Like so many people who cannot help themselves, he is going to make a career of helping others. He bandages his head with humility.

When Michaels discovers that he has an extraordinarily talented girl in his junior composition class, his hopes rise to the surface again, like worms after rain. If he cannot write the great American novel, perhaps he can edit it. He imagines the author, whom he has not yet identified, as a beautiful girl: perhaps they will intermingle their emotions in more ways than one. He will welcome hack his muse on any terms.

But Susan Vehna Hinners is an unequivocal case of art for art's sake. No solicitous kiss is going to waken her sleeping beauty, because she hasn't any. She is bony in all the wrong ways, plain beyond Michaels's wildest dreams, a gargoyle of American gothic. Even the rueful Michaels cannot see her as a sexual possibility. Though he needs love as an addict needs drugs or an alcoholic drink, Michaels is too unoriginal to love Susan. He cannot accept her as a love object for the same reason that he cannot write a novel.

It is not her 16 years that inhibit him but his Ivy League esthetics. In her own way, she is older than he is in any case. Lacking any ulterior motive, he is forced into an unselfish nobility—and we all know where that leads. "Captain Grownup" reminds us that unselfishness today is generally mistrusted, or disliked as a form of moral snobbery.

Kit Reed is not altogether successful with Michaels. When it comes to antiheroes, we are too richly oversupplied to warm up to him very much. But Susan is another matter, she is the other side of "Lolita." And her family has more than a whiff of William Faulkner about them.

Susan's father collects old cars, not an-Susan's father collects old cars, not an-tiques, but wrecks, and fixes them up. For a while, he is infatuated with them, sits in them, polishes them, strokes them. Then, in one of his rages, instead of heating his wifa and children—or after heating them— he takes a sledgehammer and demolishes the car, all but the engine. When the car has heen "raped" in this way, he drives it into a hill and buildness diet over it. This into a hill and bulldozes dirt over it. This hill is a monument to his rage.

Susan's sister Sally has disappeared, and in one of her stories she imagines Sally sitting in a wrecked car in the hills, huried by one of her father's tantrums. Susan's mother, Grete, is a current American type: a once-beautiful, tough and sentimental woman who is going to hell with herself because she cannot find any other destination. Deillia, Susan's oldest sister, is a rogue female, another new image in our social evolution. She functions as a sort of Marine landing party for Susan in the attempt to break down Michael's "good reso-

Plank Across Abyss

The theme of "Captain Grownup" is Su-san'a effort to use Michaels as a plank to throw across the abyss between her family life and the world. She directs all her talent and desperation into making him feel guilty enough to "save" her. In the end, it is not clear which of them saves the other.

In "Captain Grownup," Kit Reed seems to suggest, with malice aforethought, that the best way to help anyone—if you are serious-is to let them exploit you as thoroughly as possible. Perhaps she even needs to go further and say that if you have nothing better to do than to help people, being exploited is prohably the ideal emotional exercise for you. Altruism and ego-ism function like a balanced aquarium. Before you can accept this, you must be more than adult: you have to be "Captain

A Transit 'Mistake'...

San Franciscans, standing fast against coercion by striking transit workers and other embattled municipal employees, freely scknowledge that the specter inspiriog their resistance is the fiscal plight of New York City.

They fear that their city will follow this one in courting bankruptcy if it fails to hold the wage line. Even the threat of a general strike in their highly unionized community has not thus far broken the resolution of San Francisco's elected officials.

No similar display of civic resolve is yet discernible in New York itself, despite the infinitely worse state of its finances. The transit agreement negotiated in this city under club of a strike threat has rightly been termed "a tragic mistake" by Senator Proxmire, who as chairman of the Senate Banking Committee is a figure of critical importance in determining availability of the Federal help New York so desperately needs.

The city-operated subways and buses are already under a deficit of such staggering dimensions that the Transit Authority warns of a possible 15-cent increase in the fare a year hence, iodependent of any effect of the new pact. Clearly the transit system-which expends fivesixths of its operating budget on labor costs-has no money to put into higher wages this year, bowever modest these increases may appear by the extravagant yardstick of past settlements,

The dangers inherent in the pact's liberalized cost-ofliving escalator are multiplied by its precedeot-setting effect for all other civil service unions. Extension of the transit formula to police, fire and other municipal agencies would add an estimated $375 million to Mayor Beame's austerity budget over the oext two yearsa burden that would smash the city's painful effort to restore some element of solvency.

.. Any, doubt that the other unions will insist on gains comparable to those finally approved for transit employees has already been removed by their spokesman, Victor Gotbaum, chairman of the Municipal Labor Com-

...Imperils the City

That puts a heavy obligation on the Emergeocy Financial Control Board, which has final authority to approve or reject the transit accord. It will be told by the Transit Authority and the mediators who assisted in the negotiations that the pact is a "cbeap" one, especially when measured against the inflationary settlement of the nationwide truck strike—a settlement duly solemnized as tolerable by Alan Greeospan. President Ford's chief economic adviser.

But all such attempts to rationalize the subway pay increase overlook the basic reality facing the control board. It is that validation of the egreement would virtually insure collapse of the city's financial plan, with all the the attendant risks of default, mass layoffs, courtenforced revision of contracts and an accelerated flight of industry and jobs from New York.

Contracts just ratified by New York State employees provide no increase for this year in basic wages and no cost-of-living escalator. There is no case in equity for giving New York City transit workers a better break. Their individual earnings have risen 129 percent in the last decade, as against a rise of 77 perceot in consumer prices. Overall labor costs have gone up 180 percent, despite a drastic drop in both riders and service. A shift did begin last year, with $100 million saved by not replacing workers who left the system, but the riders had to pay a large part of the price in service cutbacks.

The real oeed is to eliminate wasteful work rules and other ingrained obstacles to genuine efficiency. In the absence of specific commitments for such changes, it is not good enough for the Transit Authority and the Transport Workers Union to say that they are establishing yet another committee to seek productivity gains that will neutralize the full cost of the escalator. The pact guarantees that the workers will get the extra money, whether or not savings are achieved through greater efficiency.

It is just such commitments-putting the interests of public employees ahead of those of the public-that have dragged the city to its present sorry condition. It is time to turn the train around.

Abundance on the Dial

Cable television began as a method of bringing improved pictures to areas of the nation that had poor reception, auch as mountainous country or skyscraper cities. Today there are 3.350 cable systems in 7,300 communities providing service by subscription to about ten million households.

In the course of its growth, the Federal Communications Commission imposed a number of regulations limiting the importation by cable of distant signals as well as restrictions on the use of movies, sporting events and other programming. Prohibitions oo paycaple, for example, forbid the showing or films unless they had played in theatrical release for a period of years.

Government and foundation studies in the last few years have called for lifting some of these restrictions in order to make cable's programs and other services mora widely available. Tha Office of Telecommunications Policy recommended two years ago that cable TV be considered akin to a common carrier. That is, like the telephone company, it would be allowed to send out signals without interference or censorship, but subject to legal and technical safeguards. A report by the private Committee for Economic Development last year called for relaxing restrictions on ownership, providing access oo a nondiscrimioatory basis and modernizing the archaic copyright law to permit greater availability of programs.

The expansion of cable TV is being resisted, however, by the regular over-the-air broadcasters. Apparently this message has been clearly heard by the White House.

A. H. RASKIN, Assistant Editorial Page Editor

JACK ROSENTRAL, Associate Editor

TOM WICKER, Associate Editor

Although President Ford's economic edvisers have called for less regulation by the F.C.C. and other agencies, it now appears that the conventional broadcasting lobby has forced further delay in lifting onerous restrictions on cable programming.

This is most unfortunate in that it limits competitioncontrary to the President's avowed policy-and has the effect of narrowing the spectrum of ideas, events and economic growth in ell the netion's communities. The public is entitled to greater abundance on the dial.

'New Federalism'

Drawing on information collected in a study of twentysix southern cities, the Southern Regional Council has painted a depressing picture of the initial impact of the Nixoo Administration's "New Federalism" on urban

A year and a half ago, Congress replaced the bettery of special-purpose urban programs, which the Administratioo had deemed both uoduly restrictive and unworkable, with the Community Development Act of 1974. That set was to be the major vehicle for ending urban blight and for expanding the availability of housing for low and moderate income Americans. It was also designed to place the major responsibility for program planning and operations with units of local government and to give them operating flexibility in pursuing the program's goals.

The council's report indicates that Congressional estimates of the desire and the capacity of local governmeots to deliver services to low income people may have been unduly optimistic. The report is replete with Instances of gross misuse of Community Development money such as the expenditures of $150,000 in Little Rock and $50,000 in Chettanooga to build tennis courts in affluent neighborhoods, and expenditures in other cities for general city facilities such as a city hall elevetor in one community and a parking garage in another. Still more distressing is the council's cooclusion that even in cities where money wes not being spent in such dramatically inappropriate ways, it was not doing very mucb good.

Though the act required participation in the programming process of the citizens who were to be benetited, the requirement was not elways honored. In fact, one Little Rock official, in talking about the tennis court decision said, "We must remember the needs of the people who vote, because they hold us accountable. Poor people don't vote."

The geoeral idea of the "New Federalism" was that since local officials had clearer ideas than distant bureaucrats about their communities' problems, they ought to be giveo more authority to solve problems. But there was another aspect as well: that Congress would define the general problems to be addressed and that the Department of Housing and Urban Development would hold the local governments accountable.

According to the council's report, H.U.D. hasn't performed as it should. It is probably too early to call the program a failure, but it is certainly appropriate to observe that if H.U.D. continues to default, the program will surely fail.

East Europe Debate

Ever since Soviet tanks crushed the tragic Hungarian uprising of 1956, when American inaction exposed the bollowness of talk about "rolling back the iron curtain," United States policy toward Eastern Europe has neither varied significantly nor been seriously criticized et home. It has favored increased autonomy and internal freedom for the Soviet satellites, while cautiously avoiding encouragement to rebellion nr other chellenges to Moscow's predominance that might provoke armed Soviet Little departure from this policy shows up in the full officiel summary of State Department Counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt's private talk in December to e meeting of American ambassadors in Europe. Except for one unfortunate word, "orgenic," now repudiated, it is evident that inaccurate leaks and statements out of contextnot to mention the politics of e Presidential year-are mainly responsible for the controversy over the remarks of Secretary Kissinger's chief adviser on Soviet affairs.

Mr. Sonnenfeldt described the situation in Eastern Europe as potentially explosive because the Soviet Union relied on sheer force to maintain its imperial control. To avoid an explosion, he urged "a policy of responding to the clearly visible aspirations in Eastern Europe for a more autonomous existence within the context of a strong Soviet geopolitical influence" and a "more natural and organic" Soviet-East European relationship. The whole context of his remerks makes it evident that his objective is not absorption of East Europe into the U.S.S.R. but more autonomy for East Europe through a relaxed Soviet attitude. Whether this policy-first advocated by Geoeral de Gaulle then adopted by former Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany and the other NATO countries-ultimately will bring substantial freedom to East Europe has yet to be seen. But it was failure of the cold war policy of trying to force Soviet withdrawal from East Europe as a prerequisite for détente that led to the reverse concept that détente had to come first as a prerequisite for relaxing the Soviet Union's grip on its

in a recent letter to The Times, Mr. Kheel says that Governor Rockefeller sdvised him by letter of August 7, 1973, that the authority was created exclusively as an agency of transportation in the port district. Mr. Kheel says that Mr. Ronan, not then chairman of the authority, drafted the Governor's letter.

As full-time chairman of the authority, Mr. Ronan has learned that the authority's legal responsibilities extend beyond planning and developing a coordinated system of transportation, to promoting the commerce of the port, protecting the port area from discriminatory transportation charges, petitioning government sgencies for improvements and changes which would expedite the handlog of commerce in the port district and purchasing, building, leasing and operating transportation or terminsl and other facilities of commerce within the port district. Should controls be abolished at the $300 level, it would be severe hardship to me and I am sure to countless others in a similar situation.

Why not allow a senior citizen's rent to be frozen until such person's death or until he or she is forced to move due to ill bealth or is incapable of living alone? Meanwhile, the prospect of invading a slender capital looms. I have to hope that it lasts longer than 1 do.

By lifting the arms embargo against Egypt, the United States merely sccelerates the erms race in the Middle East, and further tilts the already lopsided balance of arms in favor of the Arabs against Israel. We are only the newest of a long list of arms suppliers to the Arabs, including Russia, England and France, whereas Israel must rely almost solely on the United States for sophisticeted military equipment. It is not possible to impose meaningful restrictions on the use of American arms once they are in Arah hands, for, as we have witnessed in previous Arab-Israeli wars, the Arab stales jointly share their arms. Peking's Nuclear Restraint

By Jonathan D. Pollack

. CAMBRIDGE Mass.—It is now more than eleveo years since China exploded its first nuclear device. The almost universal alarm evident a decade ago is now rarely heard, and properly so.

China's emergence as a nuclearweapon state has reinforced rather than undermined the caution and control long epparent in Peking's conduct of its foreign affairs.

Chinese leaders have not been prone to reckless actions, nor have they used atomic blackmail against nonnuclear states. Peking has not transferred nuclear technology or fissionable material to other countries, and has consistently sought to limit the contingencies under which it might use such weapons.

It is also obvious that China's nuclear program has not proceeded according to United States expectations. The beliaf that China would engage in widespread weapons testing and rapid deployment of delivery systems was clearly mistaken. China has conducted 18 known tests since 1964. During the same period, according to the publicrecord, the United States has tested weapons on 278 occasions, and the Soviet Union 167 times.

The slow growth in delivery systems is even more striking. As acknowledged by Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in recent Congressional testimony, a "limited range" intercontinental ballistic missile ready for deployment for several years has yet to become operational. Nor has China deployed any sea-launched ballistic missiles. Chinese strategic forces instead coosist of a modest complement of medium-range and intermediate-range bombers and ballistic missiles, based heavily on Soviet technology of the late 1950's and even earlier. Moreover, the growth of these forces has virtually ceased in recent years. No intermediate bombers, for example, are known to have been built or deployed since 1973.

The premises underlying Chinese policy emerge more clearly from thesa trends. Chinese officials have always insisted that their country's development of nuclear weapons is "solely for the purpose of self-defense." The principal objective is to assure that China acquires an unspecified but survivable retaliatory capability, particularly against the Soviet Union.

Thus, a consensus appears to exist in Peking to avoid the unrestrained growth of Chinese nuclear-delivery systems. Intermediate and mediumrange missiles, even if "obsolescent and cumbersome" (General Brown's description), can be dispersed widely, and never clustered in significant numbers. Placing missiles in caves helps compensate for insufficiencies in hardened underground silos. Similarly, what General Brown termed an "old and vulnerable" bomber force can be rotated frequently to different air-first-strike calculations that Soviet military planners could have reasonably considered only a few years ago.

Restricting the role of China's nuclear weapons to a strategy of pure deterrence has other advantages, as well. It greatly constrains the technological and economic hurdens of attempting to match Soviet and United States delivery systems. There is, moreover, no assurance that China's capacities in high-technology areas such as guidance systems, warhead design and fueling techniques can even approximate the efforts of the

The acquisition of a modest but credible second-strike force seems a more realistic objective, Such a limited goal enables China to avoid the endless problem of technology ecquisition and modernization of forces that plagues the United States and Soviet Union. And it can be accomplished without any appreciable detriment to Chinese security.

When Peking eventually assembles a fuller array of delivery systems, such capabilities will be attributable to a far less burdensome strategy of incremental weapons development. It will not derive from a frenzied effort fields. Such steps help undermine any to achieve superficial equivalence with

Soviet and United States strategic

These findings raise serious doubts about any incipient triangularity in the atrategic relations among China, the United States and the Soviet Union. The widely accepted view that Peking must emulate Washington and Moscow remains unproved, Iodeed, the Chinese situation suggests very much the contrary-thet there are paths to great power-status that do not depend upon endless expeoditures for armameots.

China, then, has done more than merely voice acceptance of the premises of nuclear deterrence. Unlike Soviet and American élites, its leaders have acted upon such assumptions. What possible gains would accrue to Peking for it to depart from the modest strategic course that now serves China so well?

Mr. Ford's Cover-Up

By William Safire

Whoever, having the custody of any such record ... willfully and unlaw-jully ... removes ... the same, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both; and shall forfeit his office. . . . —18 U.S. Code 2071 (B)

When J. Edgar Hoover ran the F.B.L. he withheld certain highly sensitive files from the hureau's filing system; upon his death, those files were destroyed, trustrating law enforcement officials and historians.

When Henry Kissinger ran the National Security Council, he, too, withheld certain records from the council's computerized retrieval system. Some months ago, I reported that these "dead key scrolls"—typed transcripts of all his telephone conversations, taken down secretly by a secretary on a dead, or silent, extension-were no longer in the Netional Security Council, where they belonged, but had been taken over to the State Department.

Messrs. Woodward and Bernstein have added another wrinkle to that story: It seems that when these sensitive records were removed from the White House, they were first sent to the private vault of Nelson Rockefeller at his Pocantico, N.Y., estate, After a Federal attorney warned that boxes of top-secret documents could not lawfully be kept in a private home, the Secretary brought them back onto Federal property.

Here is some more information, which the White House refuses to direct the National Security Council or the State Department to confirm or deny: 1. Dr. Kissinger's "inner file," as Security Council staffers refer to the records withheld from the system, is not limited to telephone transcripts. Memoranda of conversations with the President and foreign officials like Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin are included, and in many cases, no other, copies of the memos exist.

2. The assignment to withhold material from proper Security Council classification and filing was once ona of David Young's functions; when that Kissinger aide went off to head the "plumbers," aides Jooathan Howe and Peter Rodman took over.

3. Individual briefcase-loads of this secret material were taken out of the White House to the Rockefeller estate in the early seveoties, culminating in a big move of the remaining files in April 1973. The Kissinger men will claim they were "protecting" the files from the Nixon men, but the files began disappearing from the White they have not yet been restored. How come? The reason, I think, is that there is material in that "inner file" thet Secretary Kissinger does not want anybody in the White House, the Department of Defense, the C.I.A. or certainly the Congress to see. There are certain meetings, particularly with Ambassador Dobrynin, that he wants to be able to expunge from the record. If he can control the "memcons," he can rewrite history.

How does Nelson Rockefeller feel ebout his complicity in all this? "Henry's a friend," the Vice President told me. 'I told him he could have the use of the vault." When? "I don't remember when." Did he just volunteer his vault, or did Henry ask? "I don't remember." Were six filing cabinets filled with secret records stored there? "There's been a small volume of papers stored there." Did he realize his personal vault was being used improperly to store official secrets? "Henry's a friend, I think he said something about papers from Harvard, I don't know anything about classified documents." Could I see the man who runs his Pocantico vault, to see what was checked in and out, and who was permitted access to the documents? "No, you can't, that's private." And what of his taxpayer-paid aide, a young naval officer named—you guess Jonathan Howe, the same :Kissinger hand who operated the Pocantico un-derground railroad? "No, he's unavail-

Here is the second highest ranking official in our Government, who was chosen by President Ford to head the commission to restore respect for law in our .. intelligence , community, His home was used as the safe-house for the illegal concealment of the nation's secrets. His stonewalling answer to legitimate inquiry is that he cannot he held responsible because he did not want to know what was going on in his own home.

Behind the stone wall, I suspect. there is an important story-of conversations the public or at least key Government officials are entitled to know, and perhaps of records that have mysteriously disappeared.

President Ford, who ostentatiously offers F.B.I. help to Congress for plugging its leaks, has assigned nobody to look into this major breach of security. But it is Gerald Ford's Vice President who winks at the rule of law in handling intelligence; it is Ger-ald Ford's Netional Security Adviser who refuses all comment at an abuse of power he was surely aware of: it is Gerald Ford's Secretary of State who treats the nation's secrets as his personal secrets, and it is Gerald Ford's cover-up that must be exposed.

Doubts on New Towns

By Marshall Kaplan

DALLAS-The federally aided program of building new towns is not the panacea for our nation's urban ills. Clearly, the national welfare does not require the encouragement of new communities, as suggested by Congress and argued by many urbanists, Government officials and private

Even if the optimism of most supporters of new communities could be converted into successful projects, such projects would only house a relatively few Americans and consume only a relatively few acres of land. More important, development costs, combined with distant locations, make most new towns off limits to the poor and the middle class.

The attraction of these new towns is difficult to explain. The utopian communities of the mid-19th century and the greenbelt towns of the Depression era offer few success stories. (The European experience is not germane to this country's institutional, social and political fabric.) The incompleteness and recurrent problems of new towns initiated in recent years hardly generate confidence that new commitmities are the wave of the

Certainly the historical relevance of new towns was oversold. The developments assisted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, such as Riverton, N. Y., Park Forest, Ill., and Flower Mound, Tex., were supposed to constitute e major response to urban sprawl, housing discrimina-tion, the energy crisis and the national maldistribution of income and social services. They were to be rationally planned, heavy on amenities, coordinated, "balanced," innovative and lo and behold!--profitable and mar-

Financial problems associated with many of the planned and initiated projects require immediate redirection of Federal assistance. Only as limited demonstrations can new towns offer help to individuals interested in defining effective national urban-growth strategies. Similarly, only as rather narrowly defined demonstrations can they make economic sense to currently strapped developers.

New towns should be used to test several debatable assumptions often seen as central to the success of large land developments and new national land policies, among them the supposed virtues of long-range public and private planning, coordinated privatesector management of the urbanization process, and indeed, large scale Model Cities to Revenue Sharing," development itself Planners have argued for years that book on new towns.

long-range planning could help bring about a more efficient; qualitatively better urban environment. Because of weak technical skills and because most public and private decision makers were not able to wait for or strategically use the planners' very general plans, their pleas fell on deaf

As a result, we still do not know the real henefits of long-range planning, particularly when compared with more incremental or "muddlingthrough" processes.

Many urbanists have blamed the huilding industry for the supposed lack of quality in the urben environment. They suggest that nirvana would be upon us if we could end our reliance on small undercapitalized builders and rely on larger entrepreneurs to develop significant portions of the American landscape.

Bigness, continuity and coordinated management may well improve the development of our urban areas. But the thesis has yet to be proved. The negative experience and impact of several large corporations involved in land development suggest the need to look at possible alternatives. Whether large-scale development of many hundreds or thousands of acres is more economical is not yet clear. Most analyses fail to weigh social and -environmental costs along with fiscal

In a similar vein, the relationship between large-scale development and hoosing opportunities for minorities and the poor is tenuous. Scale and size may well increase the marketing abilities of developers willing to reach out for such residents. But, at the same time, land costs combined with costs related to the construction and operation of basic water and sewer systems may make the price of housing prohibitive to all but the well-todo or near well-to-do.

Few Federal programs contain tha seed of self-reform. Bureaucratic imperialism combined with clientgroup protectionism make it difficult to change ground rules in midstream. Until the advent of the present Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Carla Hills, Administration indifference further exacerbated the problem with respect to new towns. Unless significant modifications in the program occur soon, it is fated to approximate Mark's observation that certain facts occur "the first time as tragedy, the second as farce."

Marshall Kaplan, who wrote "The Politics of Neglect: Urban Aid from with Bernard J. Frieden, is preparing a

The Electric Economy. Some clock watchers are making the journey more efficient.

It's a simple fact of economic life. As our country shifts its energy base to the greater use of electricity, there is a need to make even more efficient use of electric generating facilities. Enter a key function in our journey to the Electric Economy: clock

Right now, electric utilities must build to meet the peak demand — even though that peak occurs only during certain times of the day and year. This responsibility does not change. But, in The Southern Company system, we see other changes that can be made to make our facilities more efficient — all of the time. In short, the more we succeed in restraining the growth in peak demand and bulancing the land, the less money we'll need for new facilities. It's that simple. But the mechanics of changing usage patterns are: highly complex.

To industrial customers, clock watching means deferring some electric usage to off-peak hours. For example, Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., recently installed a system that automatically schedules the melting of newspaper plates to times when the plant is operating below a certain electric load level. Each of our companies is working to develop other methods of deferred usage, along with innovations like interruptible contracts and offpeak riders --- two more ways to reduce the cost of electricity to customers and help balance the electric load in the bargain. Clock watching residential customers also will help ease the journey to the Electric Economy, We're lacking at dual metering, which would offer the homeowner a lower Atlanta, Georgia 30346

rate for watching the clock and using appliances at off-peak

We're experimenting with air conditioning controls which automatically will cycle customers' units to reduce summer peaks. And we see a day when consumers will watch the clock for the off-peak time to charge their electric automobiles and a last of other rechargeable devices.

The Electric Economy, A time when just about everything that runs will be powered by electricity. We're well on the way. And we'll save a few years by watching a few

Introducing The Asian Wall Street Journal.

Across the diverse Asian landscape, businessmen live in a community of interest. To serve that community, and to meet that interest, The Wall Street Journal announces a bold venture in the history of publishing.

As you read these words, The Wall Street Journal is assembling the people and technology required for the publication of the first English-language business daily to cover all of the burgeoning markets of Asia.

Uncommon Markets. An Uncommon Medium.

The diversity of Asia has been a puzzle to Western man.

Asians speak many different languages. They honor different customs. They exist, compete, and prosper within different socioeconomic systems.

Yet, throughout Asia, all business shares a common need: the requirement for the same timely, accurate, dependable information.

To meet that need a most uncommon medium will soon be launched.

The Asian Wall Street Journal.

The Critical Thread.

The Asian Wall Street Journal will not duplicate the established and indigenous business publications available in Asia.

It will not carry the volume of business news about any Asian country that the country's own national press offets to domestic readers.

Rathet, out focus will be upon the news that has ramifications beyond the boundaries of the country in which the news originates.

In short, we will concentrate on the critical thread that serves to link and unite all Asian business leaders in the common fabric of business interest.

This has been our role in the United States.

This shall be our role throughout Asia.

Business All Over Asia -Day by Day by Day.

The businessman and decision-maker in Jakarta must stay abreast of major developments in Tokyo.

So Asian news is American news - and American news is Asian news.

News of U.S. oil, steel, banking, chemicals, mining, shipping, autos, airlines, textiles, and agriculture is important news to Asian Legislative and executive branch decisions concerning international trade have a major impact on Asian economics.

News of the economy, business decisions, diplomatic policies - these stories are of high interest to Asian decision-makers.

To bring this news to Asia, we will draw upon a talented staff of two hundred editors and reporters based throughout the U.S.

Conversely, The Asian Wall Street Journal's staff will keep U.S. readets abteast of Asia's latest news.

After all, news is a two-way stteet.

Asian Readers: Asian Leaders.

From Seoul to Singapore, ftom Manila to Bangkok, the successful businessman will read The Asian Wall Street Journal.

He will have an unrivaled source of timely and accurate information, an unparalleled grasp of the significant news from throughout Asia, an unmatched understanding of the business news from around the world.

In the U.S., it has been noted that it is possible to tell a good deal about a man who reads The Journal.

We believe this will be as true of those who read The Asian Wall Street Journal.

Filling in the Dimensions of a Long Shadow.

What sort of people will read The Asian Wall Street Journal?

Consider the audience of The Wall Street Journal in the U.S.

More than 41/2 million Americans read The Journal every business day.

They are businessmen, political leaders, scientists, educators in brief, the span of decision-makers who shape the future of America.

The Asian Wall Street Journal will reach the same sort of audience in Asia.

 This will be a publication squarely intended for the leaders who are shaping the destiny of every Asian nation from Japan in the north to Indonesia in the

They will be the informed who will depend on The Asian Wall Street Journal.

Why Asia?

Asia is growing economically at a rate best described as spectacular. From 1969 through 1974, the gross national product of a group of nine countries in East Asia grew at a rate nearly triple that of the industrialized nations of the world-and almost four times that of the U.S.

This success was achieved in real GNP-after eliminating the effects of inflation.

The Philippines GNP grew 34%. Thailand's GNP grew 37%. Japan's GNP grew 40%. Malaysia's GNP grew 41%. Indonesia's GNP grew 42% Hong Kong's GNP grew 58%. South Korea's GNP grew 63%. Singapore's GNP grew 72%. Taiwan's GNP grew 143%.

Equally impressive were the trade gains of these Asian nations from 1969 through 1974. Indeed, today, East Asia's trade with the United States exceeds America's trade with the entire European Economic Community.

An Ambitious Goal. Realistic Expectations.

Our goal is to make The Asian Wall Street Journal the indispensable source of major regional and international business andfinancial news for every Asian decision-maker.

This ambitious objective is undertaken with significant advantages.

First, we have fulfilled the same role in America that we hope to fill in Asia. So, in a sense, The Asian Wall Street Journal is a logical extension—serving a similar audience in a similar way, carrying on a tradition that began in 1889.

Second, we approach out task with the solid asser of four Asian partners, each outstanding in Asian journalism.

The Nihon Keizai Shimbun in Japan, The South China Morning Post in Hong Kong, The Straits Times of Singapore, and The New Straits Times of Malaysia all hold positions of respect in their areas, won through years of dependable and accurate reporting.

With the assistance of these partners, we shall go to Asia with the realistic expectation of becoming a viral, integral part of Asian business life.

Step by Step by Step. Our links with Asia have been forged carefully. Journal coverage of Asia has been an established fact for decades. Journal reports from Asia have long merited priority attention from all interested in the region. (An example: the Southeast Asia reports of Peter Kann, the Pulitzer Prize winning journalist who will serve as Publisher and Editor of The Asian Wall Street Journal.)

The Journal's active partnership in respected Asian publications (such as The Far Eastern Economic Review and The South China Morning Post) is a matter of public record.

The Journal, in a joint effort with the Associated Press, has served the Asian business community for nine years by providing a high quality economic and business news service, the AP-Dow Jones Economic Report.

The Journal, through Dow Jones International Marketing Services, represents more than a half dozen of Asia's most highly respected publications in the U.S. and abroad.

The Asian Wall Street Journal will build on this base.

The product will be a publication with deep Asian roots, a sensitivity to Asian issues, and the traditional Journal obsession with accuracy, integrity and dependability.

Of Asians. For Asians. In Asia.

To say it again, The Asian Wall Street Journal will become a key part of the Asian business scene. It will be edited in Asia. It will be printed in Asia. It will be read in Asia.

It will be a daily with the capacity to knit the Asian business community together with a dependable flow of accurate information in the English language — a common language linking businessmen throughout Asia.

This, we suggest, will make The Asian Wall Street Journal a great asset to the expanding business and financial markets of Asia.

We suggest, with equal conviction, that The Asian Wall Street Journal will be a great asset to all who market goods, services and ideas within Asia—as well as to all who trade with Asia.

The Asian Wall Street Journal will serve as the newspaper by which this can be done, economically and efficiently.

The Asian Wall Street Journal. lournal lournalism.

We have defined the role of The Asian Wall Street Journal, outlining out objectives as a source of business and financial

This theme could be expanded. We could describe the unique coverage of daily business and financial statistics that will appear in The Asian Wall Street Journal.

But the key point is that special relationship that will exist between Asian decision-makers and The Asian Wall Street Journal.

We are determined to win through concise, objective, accurate, reliable reporting - a position throughout Asian business and finance as the indispensable source of significant news.

This is Journal journalism. This will be The Asian Wall Street Journal.

The Wall Street Journal. A Dow Jones Publication.

If you would like to know how to arrange for charter subscriptions to The Asian Wall Street Journal for your Asian employees, customers and friends, or if you'd like information about placing advertising in The Asian Wall Street Journal, please write to Donald A. Macdonald, Senior Vice President, Dow Jones & Co., Inc., 22 Cortlandt Street, New York, New York 10007.

1 Ozark Gardener, 86, Awaits Coming of the Greening Season

EYE, Ark., April 6 — Spring is late in rk Mountains this year. The oaks and ples are only now risking a few pale hoots, tentative little leaves that will stitute much of e lnss if another froat a some night on a villainous northwest olenberger is also late this year. Praceverybody else in Hogeye has braved and of frost and planted corn, onions, peas and Irish potatoes. A few, emulational dogwood and redbud trees, which re than a week have been blooming white and purple against the dark hills, one so far as to put out beans, aquasb

In tender tomato plants.

Ir. Solenberger, who is regarded as the idener in Washiogton County, has not a furrow or planted a aeed this year.

Like the craggy old maple tree in front nf his house, he finda that his sap is slow to rise this spring. It would not occur to him to attribute it to his 86 years.

He Blames the Flu "It's that old flu," he said yesterday. "Got it back in the winter and can't get rid of it. First time I've had it aince 1918."

He opened the door of his healing stove and threw another chunk of wood on the fire. He closed it a little sharply and glanced out the window toward his empty garden.

The main thing going on in the rural South this month is vegetable gardening—either the contemplation of it, as Ira Solenberger is doing. or the actual plowing, fertilizing and planting, as thousanda of others, from Hogeye to the Tidewater, are doing.

A farmer might take an hour to talk Presidential politics or to help a cow give birth, but the really urgent business for him, his wife and all of the children who are old enough to keep their feet off the onion sets is getting seeds and plants in the ground to take advantage of the warming days. With a little luck, the sweet corn planted this week will have roasting cars ("roashnears." they are called here) on the table by the middle of June.

It is a pursuit that seeks every year to join and outwit that awful force that pushes the shoots from the oak's branches that even now is turning Seth Timmons's meadow from brown to green and impelling swallows to build nests weethered old barns.

Back to the House

The same force pushes Ira Solonberger out the door in a hat and coat, hunched against Illinois River, to kick the dirt and study the sky, and then retreat back to the house to throw another chunk of wood on the fire.

There is a poet up the road at Fayetteville who leaves his tobacco-ridden study and drives into the hills to absorb the coming of spring. He watches for Robert Frost's sign's, the gold that is nature's first green, "her hardest hue to hold," and for private signs of his own that stir his senses and his spirit. Ira Solenberger's mind runs less to poetry than to science and to the satisfying of a huge curiosity. He is an amaicur magician, and he performs magic with plants as well as cards. "Summer before last. I grafted some tomatoes on some poke stelks." Why? "Just to see if they would grow."

Some Poetic Words

But when he talks of nature and growth, he uses words that Frost might have used, or Thoreau.

"Plow deep" he says. "There's one acre-right under another acre. I plow both of them. "Nature wants to reproduce its kind. That's the only reason anything bears, to reproduce

"Phosphorous makes things grow roots. If you "I farm with e tractor. But when it get rowed up and a-growing. I use a roen horse.

Mr. Soleoberger dispensed his advice on gardening as he stood awhile in yesterday's morning sun. He pointed to the three and a half acres he cultivated last year. It produced strawberries, rhubarb, corn, tomatoes, squash, sweet potatoes, Irlsh potatoes, okra, green beans, watermelons, cantaloupes, radishes, onions and

Washington a City They Hate to Love

WASHINGTON, April 11— It was a typical Capitol Hill acene. A delegation from home was in to see Repre-sentative Larry H. Pressier the other day. Flinty, rurallooking people, the kind of rockribbed cooserva-tives likely to cite

Washington "big goverment" and "government spending" as top national

They had come all the way from South Dakota to see Mr. Pressler, Republican, ebout a 59 million irrigation project for their part of the state. The Federal Govern-ment is going to pay for that

If there was irony in that scene, the Dakotans either did not sense it or were not oarticularly troubled by it. Their visit sums up a paradox that underlies the attitudes of many Americans toward their national capital. They at once vilify it as a center of waste and sloth, and hasten here when they need something, particularly

Washington a Target

Not a new American phen-omenon, but nearly everybody seems to be running for President against Washington this year. And Washington, whatever that is, does not apppreciate it one blt.

"A lot of people make a career of running against Washington so they can be sent back to spend their time denouncing Washington," denouncing Washington," said Gaylord Nelson, the Wisconsin Democrat, who Is something of a Washington fixture himself after 14 years as a United States Senator.

George C. Wallece says a vote for him is e "message to Washington." Jimmy Car-ter touts himself es an "outsider" who would sbake up the "bloated unmanageable bureaucracy in Washington." He has not even opeoed e campaign office bere.

Ronald Reagan, in his nationally televised speech last week, blamed "Washingtoo" for such evils as welfare abuse, poor housing, inferior schools and gun control. He traced it all to a "self-anoint-ed elite in our nation's capi-tal" end labeled his opponent, Presideot Ford, a member of the "Washington establishment." Not toe outdone, Mr. Ford has deoounced Federal employees who administer a "mulligen stew" of regulations.

"Washingtoo" Is a vague catchword for much of what Americans, liberal and conservative, perceive es wrong about the country—political corruption, deceit, waste, inflation, costly sociel programs that do not work.
What is Washington? Is

It the 71 percent black major-Ity thet makes it the largest bleck city outside of Africa? Is it the herd — 350,000 atrong—of civil servants who migrate downtown every morning to bureaus that honeycomb the city? Is it the legions of lawyers, lobby-lats and reportera and who feed on the Government? is it the "power elite" of publishera, columnists and politi-cal insiders who ride the Georgetown party circuit?

While the central city is mostly black, Washington is mostly black, Washington is the quintessence of middle-class America wheo taken together with its vast sub-urbs. Feeding on a seeming-ly invulnerable $6 billion Federal payroll, it is a com-fortable middle class that seema largely immune to the inflation and unemployment plaguing other Americans.

Indeed, bard times and trouble seem to fuel Washington. More reporters are needed to tell the story, more lawyers to litigate, more lobbyists to plead, more civil servants to administer aid programs.

People in Washington know enough about the realities of government to doubt that the national Government will shrivel in the least even if Ronald Reagan wins.

Probably nobody in town is more offended by all the talk of "bigness" and waste than Clyde M. Webber, a huge man built like a seated Buddba but who does not smile much these days. He is national president of the American Federation of Government Eniployees, the union that represents 700.000 of the 2.8 million civilian employees of the Govero-

"There aren't any Goveromeot programs carried out Government personnel by Governmeot personnel that bave oot been author-ized by Congress," Mr. Webber said. "These are programs the populece wants. It's almost shameful these statements ebout the competence and dedication of the Federal work force."

Mr. Webber has been sav-ing ammuoition. He points to statistics showing, despite talk of a bloated bureeucra-cy, that the Federal work force has scarcely grown in 30 years. It was 2.67 million strong in 1946; today the figure is about 2.S million. Viewed another way, there were 19 Federal workers for every 1.000 Americans in 1946, and oow there are only

"When you think the Federal Government was in complete disarray for a year, the store was kept open."
Mr. Webber said, alluding to Wetergate. "Without a competent end efficient civil service, there could have been chaos in the country.

While others here think there is much inefficieocy in Washington, few seem to think the answer is e smaller, obtrusive central Government.

Defense of Government

"It's easy to make, these anti-Government speeches; you get applause," said Representative Peul Simon, a Democrat who represents a chronically depressed district in southern Illinois. "I am for sensible economies, but when you have seven million unemployed, you better have some programa. The real question is not the size of Government but is it going to be responsive to people who have needs." Mr. Pressler of South Dakota, who comes from a rather conservative district, ran on an antiestablishment. government-reform platform But he has doubts about the wisdom of transferring too much responsibility to local governments in this "complicated ioterdependent socie-

Few young people will know the name of Benjamin V. Cohen, but he is one of those most responsible for "big government." A lawyer who was a member of President Franklin D. Roosevelt'a "brain trust." he is now 82 years old and retired—in Washington. He has little patience with all the anti-Washington talk. If anything —with economic, transportation, environmental and other problems that cut across local boundaries-he feels that more centralized authority is needed.

If there is to be a new administration, Weshington will be ready. Paul Delisle, the Frenchman who came to this "capital of the world" when it was "just a plain provincial city," cares little about whether the new President is for or against Washington as long as members of his administration eat at his restaurant. Sans Souci, which is near the White House. "Our problem is to learn the eating and reservation habits of the new people," Mr. Delisle said the other morning just before the lunch "President Kennedy was always late. Mr: Humphrey is always late. But I understand that Mr. Carter is always on time."

Lebanese leftists yesterday decided to ex-tend the 10-day armed truce to the end of April to allow time for a new president to be camed and they also demanded the withdrawal of Syrian troops from Lebanco. After a five-hour meeting at which Kamal Jumblat, chief of the Progressive Socielist Party, presided, the leftists Issued a atatement calling to the attention of "our Syrian brothera to the gravity of mibtary involvement through the entry of the Syrian Army in an ille-gitimate manner." A recent re; it on the Israeli radio about frequent Israeli purchases of Arab land on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan has atarted a political debate about the cootroversial and often surreptitious weys io which the purchases are made. Israel has been acquiring land on the West Bank for the last eight years, but the purchases are rarely made public, partly because of a Jordanian law that makes it a crime punishable by death for a West Bank Arab to sell land to an laraeli. Exploration for oil off the New England coast bas begun. A test drill is being made by a consortium of 31 oil companies on the edge of the Georges Bank 100 miles off Massachusetts to determine whether the aeabed would yield sufficient amounts of oil and natural gas to merit commercial exploitation. [1:1-2.]

Some questions raised by the discloaure laat December that President Kennedy and two major Mafia figurea were close friends of Judith Campbell have been examined in interviews with Justice Department officiala, sources close to the Central Intelligence Agency, and underworld figures. Among them were whether Mrs. Campbell used her relationship with Mr. Kennedy to benefit the Mafia, and whether the President learned from her that the C.I.A. was working with the Mafia on a plot to kill Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba. The first of three articles appears today. [1:1-2.] Ronald Reagan, trailing fer behind President Ford in the primaries, still talks confidently about winning the Republican nomination for Presideot. He said in an interview, "It's now possible to lose states that were nnce considered essential and still win," and added that for the first time his campaign would demonstrate that the population shift to the South and West has weakened the political power of the Northeast. He is convinced that because of the population shift he will win at least 700 of the 1,000 delegates in the forthcoming primaries io Southern and Westero statea. [1:S.] Senator Henry M. Jackson acknowledged in a television interview that many of the persons running in Pennsylvania as Democratic coovention delegatea committed to him would rather see Senator Hubert H. Humphrey win the Presidential nomination. He said be would not ask bis prospective delegates to "take a loyalty oath" to him oo matter what happened at the conventioo. [1:4.]

When the wives of the Presideotial caodidates are aaked wby they think both the public and the press heve apparently aban-doned their kid-glove treatment of candidates' wives, the women generally give three reasons: The women'a movement, Wetergate and Betty Ford's frankneas. Senator Henry M. Jackson's wife, Helen, said "More is expected of wives this year than at any other time in a Presidential campaign. We all discuss cerebral things, in fact, I've only gotten ooe question about fashion, and that waa from a man, and the only recipe request came to 'Scoop.' " [1:3-4.]

Housing abandonment-which in the last decade has brought tena of thousands of New York City apartments to ruin-is continuing to ravage slum ereas and is spreading into once-stable neighborhoods in the central Bronx and the Crown Heights and northern Flatbush sections of Brooklyn. The "Filthy Five" relived the misadventures of Millie the Madam and their own interrupted academic careers the other night, amid the conviviality they even managed to produce a couple of postscripts to the long-ago story. 4.5% Drop in Riders Seen if Fare Rises

The Regional Plan Association projected a 4.5 percent drop in subway riders and a 9 percent decline in bus riders in the city if the fares are raised to 65 cents, a possibility mentioned by David Yunich, Chairman of the Metropolitan Transit Authority. The drop would mean a decline of 110 million riders annually in the current total of 1.7 billion, which in turn is half the number of riders

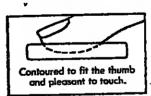

Prior to the increase of the fare to the current 50 cents, the planning group projected a subway decline of 5.3 percent and a 10.2 percent decline in bus riders. The actual figures when the 50-cent fare went into effect were 5.2 and 12.7 percent.

So intense is Robert Redford's involvement with "All the President's Men," in which he and Dustin Hoff-man co-star as Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, that occasionally he forgets himself. In an interview last week, he said, "A scene that Bernstein and I had. ..." He quickly corrected himself, "A sceoe that Dustin and I

Walter Colbenz is the "line" producer of the film and Alan J. Pakula is the director, but it is Mr. Redford who is the person primarily respectively. marily responsible for the pic-ture. He is the most recent and successful example of a burgeoning new Hollywood hyphenate, the actor-pro-

In common with Warren Beatty, Barbra Streisand and others, Mr. Redford chooses a property, pames a director, works with a writer on a screenplay, selected his cast and follows the film step by step through production. On this film, be participated in the editing, the mixing, the scoring and currently, in the advertising and promotion.

He said that the one ascorned with was the financial side. "As producer, I worry about the budget—that it's all justified. But mooey matters never really interest me. When I had no money, that bothered money doesn't bother me

The film was co-produced for SS million by Warner Brothers and Mr. Redford's company. Wildwood, on a balf-and-half basis. But, said Mr. Redford: "As a producer I stand not to gain because we had to give so much out of the producer's fee to get the people we wanted. What I make as an actor, I hope.

will make up for what I will lose as a producer."

Mr. Redford was sitting in his office in the Warner Brothers building in Rockefeller Center, a room lined with photographs of his family and friends. By the door were two large film cans containing "All the President's Men." Has film, and he is traveling.

Style Setter

He was dressed casually in jeans and boots (and sported a new, jaunty mustachen; actually, it seemed as if al-most everybody at Warners executives as well as aides -was dressed in jeans and boots although none of them looked anything like Mr. Redford. Secretaries tried to pretend that be was just an-other fellow instead of "numero uno."

He traced the genesis of bis new film back to a whistle-stop premotional tour he made in 1972 on behalf of "The Candidate," in which he played a Presidential cootender. 'I listeded to the press talk about the break-in at Democratic headquarters, three weeks before. I got into ao argument. I don't want to sound like a Boy Scout, but I became ioflamed by the abuse of public trust."

When Mr. Woodward's and Mr. Bernstein's stories began appearing, "I cheered them," said. He became interested in them for a potential movie when he read a short news magazine profile of them and realized that they were classically disparate characters. He telephoned Mr. Woodward. who put bim off. "I think he thought it was a crank call."

Mr. Redford was determined to make a movie about the two reporters and their relationship, "how two relatively unknowns came from nowhere." He went to Washington to meet them, "Then I got interested in the reporting and the investigatiog, and decided it would be a movie about reporting, with the supportive platform of how great a story it was."

In 1973 he made an oral agreement with the two of them, and finally, he said: "I tied myself to them. I'd produce the film, whoever it was sold to."

From the beginning there was great hesitation on the part of the studios. For one thing, they said, "Political films don't make money." The actor's answer: "It's oot a political film. It's a mystery, a detective story." Then, too, studios were "nervous about violating their conservative constitueocy." Finally Warner Brothers bought the rights for $450,000.

At first, said Mr. Red-ford, he did not plan to act in the film, although, briefly, be did think about directing. "I saw it as a smaller film, in black and white, no music, with two unknown actors. He changed his mind when studio executives said, "We paid a half milkon. You're going to be in it, aren't you?" William Goldman began working on the script, which changed considerably in the course of production, al-though said Mr. Redford, the structure remained the same. The decision was to focus on the early part of the reporters' investigation. In com-mon with the other films he has produced, "Downhill Rac-"The Candidate" and "Jeremiah Johnson," "All the President's Men" would be. he thought, a "how-to pic-ture"—how they got the

The Cast

Net SAILOR WHO FELL FROM GRACE WITH THE SEA, written and directed by Levis John Carlino, based on the next by this in Mishma; produced by by Martin Poll, music by It in Mandel: distributed by Awro Embassy Pictures, II the Cornet Theater, Puning lime; 103 minutes, This movie has been table for a Sarah Miles.

By RICHARD EDER

The blurred and preposterous foreground of "The Sailor Who Fell From Grace With the Sea" is the activity of a band of Nietszche-besotted children straight out of "Lord of the Flies." The limpid and beautifully filmed background is the love story of the mother of one of them and a merchant marine of-ficer. The film's climax is the bloody clash between the two stories, a climax that should be tragic but is simgrotesque and unbeliev-

When the main action of a movie is so weak and the background is so strong, a peculiar focus develops. There is a beguilement to "Sailor," which opened yes-terday at the Coronet Theater -that of sitting through a movie in a state of irascible unconvincedness while be-ing more than half seduced. "Sallor" is a radical transplant of a short story by the Japanese writer Yukio Mishima, a writer who gathered around himself a kind of heroic cult and who killed himself to protest the softness of the times. Lewis John Carlino moved it from Yokohama to Dartmouth, a Devon port.

With the inspired work of his director of photography. Douglas Slocombe, the transposition is an atmospheric triumph. The sweet but somber English coast, its lowering skies and transforming bursts of sun-shine, the clean presence of the sea, the white seaside house where the widowed mother lives and into which implacable Mishuna's mouse-gang had a certain abstract grandness. These round-faced English boys smoking cigars and spouting phrases too large for their mouths simply looked silly. Part of the trouble is the writing; Mishima transposed by Mr. Carlino is not canahle, as William Golding or Richard Hughes are, of prooote, and, through indirection, the play seems enor-mously relevant. Was Vietnam so far removed from Troy?

Mr. Hamilton is a plain-spoken, forthright Troilus, and Miss Heineman is an impassioned, birdlike Cressida, a beadstrong young woman with a sharp toogue. Paul Schierhorn and Peter Phillips strike opposite poses as the brainless Ajax and the vain, indolent Achilles. Tom Hill brings ao authority to the role of Ulysses.

Perhaps the most interesting character is Thersites. Shakespeare called him "scurrilous." He is a rosue, but he is also one of the few sensible people io the play. As played by Charles Levin, he is an iccooclast huffoon, thumbing his nose and aping the other players. The performance is devilishly comic.

The tragedy, of course, belongs to Hector. His end is ignominious, hrought down by Achilles' act of cowardice. Barry Primus gives the role weight and dimension.

The play is embellished by Krzysztof Penderecki's tinale electrooic score and Tony Straiges's striking set — 'a shimmering wall of large stones that glides apart to represent everything from Trojan fortress to Greek encampment. There are a few discordant notes; not all of the actors are up to the director's coocept or to Sbakespeare's lan-guage. But the important thing is that in Mr. Epstein's lucid production, an often its period. slighted play is revivified.

S PLAYED improve with each concert, and this tima Eddie Jefferson, the IOE JONES scat singer, and Clifford Jordan. scat singer, and Clifford Jordan, the saxophonist were added treats. But basically the evening belooged to Mr. Jones, and he carried it with energy to spare.

Three hours before concert time they are already lioing up, and because the tickets are unreserved, the line at 7 snakes around the wooden pillars of the cavernous lobby of Washington Irving High School, off Gramercy Park. They have come a fair distance: from Mountainside, N.J., from Yonkers, from the far reaches of Brooklyn. One man drives in 55 miles from Stony Brook on Long Island. But they are not teen-agers lining up for a rock concert or film buffs waiting for the new Lina Wertmuller film. They are middle-aged people or older lining up for a con-cert of chamber music.

These are the stalwarts who make op the loyal following of the Peoples' Symphony Concerts, an organization that has been succelying great music at small fees for 75 years. On Saturday night it celebrated that anniversary by moving from the high school to Carnegie Hall for a concert featuring two of today's most famous string ouartets: the Guarneri and

The fare was standard (Bach, Handel, Weber, Mozart) but the prices were not. They ranged from 25 cents to $1.25. The first year, 7,000 attended the concerts. By the sixth season that figure was up to 40,000, and a number of concerts were played at Carnegie Hall. The symphony concerts were dropped when the United States eotered started the concerts and man-aged them for years, it is Joseph Mann who remains Joseph Mann who remains indissolubly linked to the memory of the Peoples' symphony. Mr. Mano joined the organization in 1914 and managed it for 59 years until his death in 1973. A portly man with a grave demeanor, he ruled with an iron hand. He would allow no selling of tickets on the premises. He wouldn't even allow them to be giveo away.

It was Mr. Maon, however, who iolroduced in 1925 the modern-bance recitals that, until they were terminated in 1949, became one of the most potent influences in shaping the vast audience that exists for daoce today.

The artists appear there for a fraction of their regular fees, some because they believe in what the organization is doing, some because they admire the audience. some because such a recital amounts to an out-of-town appearance without the need Nevertheless, the Peoples'

Postal rates are up; rental for Washington Irving weot up 56 per cent this year. Its endowment is modest. A fund-raising effort is being planned, though its exact nature has not yet been determined. Although cootinuity is the hallmark of the Peoples' Symphony, not everything remains the same. For Mr. Mann a black tie was de rigueur; his was the only formal touch at the concerts except for the players. Mr. Salomon is in the modern mode. On Saturday his dress

Elleen Farrell has been singing professionally for more

with the New York Phiharmonic at Fisher Hall on Saturday oight, the durable soprano

17-Under-Par Score Equals Record: Crenshaw Is 2d

By JOHN S. RADOSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 11 - Raymond Floyd swept through the Masters today and won by eight strokes in one of the biggest runawaya in the 40-year history of the tournament.

Utterly certain that he had the tournament in the bag even before the final round began, the 33-year-old Miami professional came to the tradition-rich, Augusta National Golf Club determined "not to

"I wanted a decent round, par or better," said Floyd,
"and considering today's conditions, this was a good one."

It was better than good.

While the rest of the field was having trouble coping with a stiff breeze that some-times changed direction and speed, Floyd drilled his shots with cool poise and shot a 70, two under par, for a 72-hole aggregate of 271.

That tied the record of 17 under par that Jack Nicklaus set in 1965. It was at the 15th hole today that Floyd went 17 under with a 15-foot went I' inder with a 13-100t hirdie putt, and he said that was the first time he had thought about the record. After that, he added, "all I had to do was walk in and not get hurt."

BUFFALO, April 11 - The New York Islanders offered little resistance to the Buffalo Sahres and the French Connection tonight in losing the opening game of their National Hockey League playoff quarterfinal series, 5-3. The second game of the four-of-seven confrontation will be played Tuesday night again in the Buffalo Memorial Behind 5mith's aggressive goaltending, New York showed signs of stirring in the final period. The Island-ers got two more goals, but Robert scored his second goal and the Sabres remained out of reach.

That never before Charley Finley came along and it isn't happen again, so no fear of setting a precedent deterred bidders. With one Hunter available and 23 buyers in the market, the laws of supply and demand took effect.

Messersmith, on the other band, was a free agent not hecause of any breach of contract but because, as a schoolboy in Toms River, N. J., he had learned to read. He read the provision in the standard player's contract that enables a club to hold an unsigned player "for a period of one year," and took that to mean 12 months. When two mem-bers of an arbitration panel and two Federal courts agreed with him, he went on the open market.

He was the first to win his freedom under the one-yes newal clause, but the owners know he will not be the last. That is why they were determined to hold tha price down. They may not be the most foresighted people in the world, but there was no need for an overt conspiracy.

Atlanta Must Be Heaven

Two points might be mentioned in passing. Now that the courts have ruled that a haseball player may play out his option and be free, the owners and their sycophants are painting borrid pictures of a future when players will be constantly on the move, hauling their families around in gypsy caravans without a thought for the fans they leave behind.

In the last two years, two players bave moved hy their own choice-Hunter and Messersmith. In the same period, more than 200 have been moved by their owners, without a thought for tha players, their families or fans. That is more than one-third of all the players in the majors, and many of them with stars with their own loyal followines-Bobby Murcer, Bobby Boods, Rusty Staub, Mickey Lolich, Fergusoo Jenkins, Reggie Jackson, Ken Holtzman,

The other point: over and over we are told that when players are free to move, all the best will go by choice to New York or Los Angeles. Nobody mentions that away back last midsummer, the players themselves proposed a method of preventing this by putting a limit on tha number of free agents any team might hire. Nobody mentions it because the owners haven't responded to the proposal yet. But let it be noted that even without those restrictions, rsmith turned down New York, he turned down Lo Angeles and he turned down the alubrious climate and juicy hamburgers of San Diego. MOTOR TREND MAGAZINE, APRIL 1976:

"The winner of the 1976 Motor Trend Import Car of the Year Award is the Toyota Celica. Not just a Celica, or even the new Liftback," but the complete three-car line: The ST, GT and Liftback." It is the car the editors felt best combined engineering, style, performance, comfort, and execution. Here's just part of what comfort, and execution. Here's just part of Motor Trend said about the Celica Line...

Comfort: "The New Liftback is a GT in the tradition of grand touring machines. It is designed to transport people and luggage over long distances quickly, safely, comfortably and efficiently...behind-the-wheel visibil-ty of both road and instruments is excellent..."

Performance: "...good performance without sacrificing fuel economy." NOTE: 1976 EPA tests with 5-speed overdrive transmission: 36 mpg on the highway, 20 city. These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary, depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

Engineering: "With only 56% of the total weight on the front wheels, larger wheels, steel belted radial tires and firmer suspension, handling is excellent with no sacrifice in riding comfort."

Style: "Toyota introduced the Celica Sports Sedan concept to the U.S. in 1971...Sports Sedan described it perfectly. And still does. The Liftback has a clean look... it is smooth of line...there is plenty of cargo space..."

Execution: "The Celica has been a significant force on the U.S. automotive scene for several years now...so although this award is for the 1976 Celicaline, it is also recognition of the quality of all those that have gone before."

Floyd, With 271, Wins by 8 Shots

in 1941, Palmer in 1960 and Nicklaus in 1965. As the preceding winner, it was Nicklaus's duty to slip onto Floyd the green jacket that signifies victory. Officials were quite sure hy Friday evening that Floyd would win, and they were all set for him with a size-44 blazer borrowed from a member for the victory ceremony.
What pleased Floyd today

as much as his victory was his control. In the past, he had been impetuous and had let bad situations get to him. But in this weekend's slow play, when he had to wait five minutes or more to shoot, he kept his patience, something he could not do years ago. And when be got off a poor shot, he didn't let it faze him. That was true after a double bogey vesterday and a bogey today.

"Six wins in 13 years is not a great record." Floyd said about his pro career. "But this is my second major tournament [he won the Professional Golfers' Association championsbio in 1969], and that has to tell me I'm getting better."
Floyd bas won seven tournaments since joining the tour in 1963. Today's $40,-000 purse raised his winnings for the season to $54,924 and his career winnings to $752,512.

Floyd's final round included, three birdies, a bogey and a few saved pars.

Hook Shot Clicks He started with a scrambling par on the first, where he had to hook a 7-iron round a pine tree to the green. He took a bogey 4 on the fourth, where he missed the green, but he recovered the stroke with a birdie 3 on the fifth, where he stiffed a 3-iron shot that included an eagle on the 485-yard 13th, and a saved par on the 15th, where he had to remove bis right shoe and sock, stand in water up to bls right knee and blast the ball out from a mud bed up to the green. The top of the hal was in the clear, and Crenshaw whacked it with a sand wedge to 15 feet from the hole. From there he took two

By DAVE ANDERSON Special to The New York Times AUGUSTA, Ga., April II - Once a playboy who practiced more with the Chicago Cubs than with his golf clubs. Raymond Floyd is "tired of

When not oo the tour, the 33-year-old Floyd lives with his wife and two sons at the Palm Bay Club in Miami, where Grout was the club pro at the LaGorce Country Club before transferring to Nicklaus's new Muirfield Vil-lage Club near Columbus.

Fed Up With Hooks

"I'd gotten into a situation where I never wanted to where I never wanted to hook a ball anymore," Floyd sald of the slump that preceded Grout's tutoring, "but he made me realize that if I couldn't book a ball when I wanted to, I couldn't play."

Oo the first hole of his closing 70 today, Floyd booked a 7-iron shot round a pine tree to the greeo for a par 4.

"That shot got me off to a good start," Floyd said.
"My goal was to bave a good round and I did. Overall, I had a lot of goals set this year and winning the Masters was one of them. I want to win golf tournaments, especially major tournaments. I'm tired of being a mediocre player."

Raymond Loran Floyd was born Sept. 4, 1942 at Fort Bragg, N.C., where his father, L.B., was the golf pro at the L.B., was the golf pro at the enlisted man's course. Floyd's sister, Marlene, also is a touring pro. She was selected as the "Most Beautiful Golfer" in 1973 by Golf Digest magazine.

By MURRAY CHASS

Special to the New York Times
MILWAUKEE, April 11— Andy Messersmith, who nearly hecame a New York Yankee, was oo the verge of becoming a San Diego Padre and then a California Angel before be finally became an Atlanta Brave.

By signing with the Braves in San Diego yesterday, Messersmith ended a day, Messersmith ended a struggle of nearly six months to become a free agent and signed with the team of his choice. In a series of whirlwind oegotiations last week, the Padres and then the Angels bad become that team. However, the deals with both teams collapsed before he could sign a cootract, paving the way for the Braves to vault hack into the running for the pitchers talented services.

"Ted Turner is crazy," Messersmith said by telephone from his California home today, referring to the Atlanta owner and his boy-ishly enthusiastic manner, "but he's an upfront guy and he's going to be fun to play

Neither the pitcher nor the Braves would discuss specifics of the agreement, hut it's known to be a threeyear contract worth no more than $1 million. That would make it less lucrative to Messersmith than the deals he had going with the Padres and the Angels.

Although the initial agreement with the Braves, which is guaranteed and includes a no-trade provision, covers three years, there are clauses that will extend it

Long-Range Security

"I'm going to play out my career with the Braves," the 30-year-old Messersmith said, "and this kind of guarantees

"Our understanding is we can renew his contract forever oo a year to year basis." Turner said from San Diego. There has been a salary established for the renewal years, but it would be negotiable in the event he slowed up some. If he got better, there's a lid on it, but a nice lid. I'll take care of him."

Only eight days earlier. Turper had said he was sick of the whole Messersmith negotiations and added that "the best thing that could said, "he changed his mind." Turner, who was the first person to enter a bid for Messersmith after the pitcher became a free agent March 16, originally was said to have offered a $200,000 salary for ao unspecified number of years. He said the total figure in this agreement was "not dissimilar" to that

The Padres publicly acknowledged that they had offered $1.15 million in a four-year contract. What they didn't say was that their owner, Ray Kroc, apparently killed the deal last Wednesday hy refusing to make it a guaranteed, no-trade con-

The Angels, it was learned, reached a handsbake agreemeot with Messersmith last Thursday. A knowledgeable source said that Gena Autry, the Angel owner, originally had approved the agreement, hut had backed out at the last minute because the deal was too costly.

Although an Angel execu-tive denied it, the offer was said to have been for four years at a total of $1,3 mil-lioo — $200,000 salary per year plus $500,000 in deferred payment Messersmith started his career with the Angels.

Yankee Offer Lowest

The Yankee offer that Messersmith declined because terms were changed between a aigned memorandum and the actual contract was worth less than either the San Diego or California packages. The Yankees would have paid the right-hander a $100,000 salary for each of four seasons, a $36,000 paymeot upon signing the con-tract and $64,000 at the end of the four years. There also was $500,000 in deferred payments involved, but the Yankees' refusal to have the $500,000 begin drawing interest immediately, reduced its present value to $375,000. Thus, the total was really $875,000.

Except for his encounter with Kroc of the Padres, who said the pitcher could go work in a car wash, Messersmith declined to discuss specific offers and deals. Asked if he was bitter over some of the problems and Herseth got his picture taken with DiMaggio. Lurie, who has been overseeing every detail for weeks now, was as ubiquitous as Bill Veeck. Bill Rigney, the Giant manager, considered signing the lineup card "Rignie," but decided it wouldn't be necessary.

Remember Rigocetti?

"But it is true that when I first played here at Oakland," he recalled, "they told people my real oame was Rigooettl, and that Rigney was just a shortening of it."

Nets Routed, 105-79; Spurs Even Series

ped a bone in his right ankle after a collision in the third quarter of Friday's game and was lost for the playoffs. He watched today's game from the bench, a cast on his ankle and wraparound sunglasses barely biding his glee.

The injury put George: Gervin in the backcourt for the Spura and gave Coby Dietrich, a spot starter this season, a place at forward with the unenviable task of guarding Julius Erving.
Though Erving finished with 27 points, he did not have a good game as his outside shooting was off. Dietrich generally had one hand in Erving's face and one elbow in Erving's ribs.

"I don't know if he did badly or I did good," said Dietrich, whose knees were skinned raw from his defensive effort. "All I know is he didn't have a good game. The whole team looked like we did the other night"

did the other night."

Larry Kenon, the former

Net and a jumping jack today at forward, did much of San Antonio's offensive damage, hitting his floating jump shot with regularity. Gervin, a large guard at 6 feet 7 inches, took his man inside a lot and took his man incide a lot and collected 22 points and 13 rebounds as a result. Mike Gale, not usually an offensiva threat, had 14 points on some key baskets.

Gale, too, is a former Net and so is Billy Paultz, who had 18 rebounds, 17 off tha defensive boards. All in all, the Spurs outrebounded the Nets. 70-S5, and Paultz was the big difference.

The Spurs were clearly charged uo as the game began. Their defensive patterns resembled linebacker blitzes, and it looked like a tag-team wrestling match un-der the boards. At one point, after Loughery protested e referee's call. Bass shouted some suggestion to him that were hoth unprintable and impossible.

As the Nets kept missing their shots, the Spurs got further ahead—10 point at the half, and 15 at the end of the third quarter. Then the Nets bad to gamble for steals and offensive rebounds, and the Spurs put the game away with e series of baskets of the fast break

The Nets made two runs at The Nets made two runs at the Spurs io the third quarter, getting to within 5 points in one surge, but each time bad passing and bad shooting wiped out the advance. The Coliseum crowd, never known for being noisy, set up a few rare cheers during the rallies but most of the time were outshouted by the 18 San Antonio fans who traveled with the team. traveled with the team.

The playoff round, tied at 1-1, now moves to San Antonio for games on Wednes-day night and either Saturday night or Sunday afternoon. The fifth game will be back at the Coliseum on April 19.

Saudi Venture With U.S. Ties Thrives in Booming Economy

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia, April 11—The Saudi Research and Development Corporation, a big holding company with links to the United States, has doubled the hook value of its assets, from $75 ml-lion to $150 million in the last 12 months, its head, Ghaith Pharaon, said in a recent interview. "This country is booming.

Every town is one big con-struction site," he told a visitor to his gleaming office in this sultry Red Sea port. Western business informants reported recently that Mr. Pharaon, who last year bought control of Michigan's sixth largest bank, has $600 million worth of uncompleted Saudi Government construction contracts on hand.

The soo of an influential adviser to the Saudi royal family, Mr. Pharaon said he owns half of Saudi Research and Development, one of the largest Saudi merchant con-cerns. It consists of nine largely autonomous divisions with operations ranging from construction to insurance to catering. The other 50 per-cent of the company is owned by relatives, Mr. Phajammed Saudi ports. The Saudi economy is buoyed by Saudi Arabian oil revenues, which have been running well over $20 billion a year. Mr. Pharaon, speaking voluble English, said: "It's growing too fast. It's overheated, and this, we feel, is a bit dangerous." Mr. Pharaon asserted that the growth of his company, which was founded in 1967, hed been internally generated, with no long-term borrowing from outside institutions although he said its tions, although be said its short-term debt was current-ly $4 million. Trued, an American, was reported last month, replacing James T. Barnes Sr. who had controlling interest to Mr. Pharaon.

Mr. Trued, who is 53, for-merly was an official of the Inter-American Development Bank in Washington and of the Cleveland National Bank He also served as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for International Affairs under President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The plant opened in 1973 and had sales of more than $500,000 in the experimental year of 1974. Since then its sales have been running at the rate of $2 million to $3 million a year, Mr. Pharaon reported. He did not discuss profits.

With three shifts working full time, the plant blends the imported ingredients to sait the Arab market and climate before turning them into tablets and the like. Crab Grase as Mulch Mr. Solenberger believes in humus. He produces it by placing mulch between the rows. A liberal politician in Mississippi enjoys a minor it's a detriment to you for the first season." Many of his neighbors plant by the moon. That is, they wait until the mood is in a certain phase before putting certain seeds into the

Magazines' Ad Revenues Growing

A 1976 smile has replaced a 1975 frowo on the face of Stephen E. Kelly, president of the Magazine Publishers Association. What strange force had the power to create this mood change? Advertising increases, of course.

The magazines that are membera of the Publishers Information Bureau, an affiliated group, are up 13 percent in revenues for the first quarter and up 10 percent in ad pages, Mr. Kelly reported the other day. As far as revenues go, he said, it was the best first quarter and best March in magazine history.

Total estimated revenues for the quarter were $332.8

"Automotiva has shown a marvelous increase." said Mr. Kelly, noting that in the first two months alone this category improved by $7.74 million while smoking materials (mostly cigarettes) showed a jump of $4.8 million. Smile, end the world smiles with you.

Elsewhere in Brooklyn, rea estate people and tenant-oriented community leaders express concern that housing abandonment could become a problem in at least two additional areas-Crown Heights and northero Flatbush-unless major steps are taken to combat growing pockets of decline. One group of six-story buildings abandoned in the last two or three years—on Bronx Park South, directly scross from the Bronx Zoo—was described this way by David Krakow, an official of the city's Housing and Development Administration:

Causes of Abandonment

The causes of housing abandonment-or, more precisely, of the process of decay that ends in abandonmentinvolve an intricate and much-disputed web of economic, social and even psychological strands. They include:

POPULATION CHANGES-In the last 30 years in New York City, nearly two million whites, mostly middle class, have been reptaced by about the same number of nonwhites and Puerto Ricans, mostly poorer and increasingly unable to afford the ever-higher rents needed to keep aging buildings in good repair.

"RACISM"-Some black and Puertn Rican leaders charge that when minority-group members move into an area, white owners become convinced that the neighborhood will "go downhill" and begin cutting back on buildings expenditures, thus fostering the decline they fear. White landlords often hold that hostility toward them by some minority activists and residents has driven out responsible, long-time white owners, paving the way for "speculators."

RENT CONTROL-Real estate people and a number of housing specialists say that rent control and other city policies deprive buildings of badly needed rental income and make it difficult to evict destructive tenants.

INADEQUATE MAINTENANCE—Tenant advocates say that many owners keep maintenance to the barest minimum and "milk" buildings for maximum profits and income-tax benefits. That is why, these acrocates say, abandonment is also widespread in cities without reot control.

"RED-LINING"-Bankers are accused of refusing to provide the mortgage money necessary for rehabilitation in some areas. They say that they are being made "whipping boys," have suffered major losses themselves because of abandonment and that their first obligation is to invest their depositors' money "prudently."

INADEQUATE PROGRAMS-Housing and renewal programs at all levels of government are almost always described as insufficient.

WELFARE FRAUD-Welfare recipients who "divert payments" intended to cover their rent are said by some landlords and community leaders to be a major cootributing element.

Overalt, the New York Urban Coalition recently attributed housing abandonment to a "loss of bope."

The owner loses bope in the building, the banks in the neighborhood and the tenants in the lanlord," the the neighborhood and the tenants in the landlord," the three groups have about the building, they all agree on one thing. The building has no future.

The story itself affords

The delightful novel is only partly successful on televi-sion. Harry Green's dramatization has not been able to establish a unifying lone, in the novel, Willie's sardonic practicality served as an umbrella for the whole. In the episcoic dramatization, the point of view careens be-tween satire and sentimentality, caricalure and sincerity. Too often, the result is merely disconnecting.

But several bits and pieces ere worth savoring. The por-traits of a male critic and a femule art patron are nicely wicked. GIARDINO REBUTS CRITICS OF CITY U

Calls on Carey and Beame to Settle Clashing Views Over Future Financing

By FRANCIS X. CLINES

Rejecting criticism that the City University has shirked its full budget-cutting responsibility, the chairman of the Board of Higher Education has urged Governor Carey and Mayor Beame to provide close to $100 million more to the university by withholding planned city cuts and increasing state aid in their next budgets.

The proposal, which was delivered in a letter from the board chairman, Alfred A. Giardino, to the Governor and the Mayor last Friday, amounts to the university's latest bid in the three-way, poker-like contest with the state and city over the university's fiscal

Mr. Giardino told the two executives that until the city and state settled their rival interests over the university's future finaocing, "it is difficult, if not impossible," for the board to enact further cuts beyond the $122 million estimated thus

In this latest move n the fiscally and politically compli-cated issue, Mr. Giardino called on the city to hold off for a year on a key part of the Mayor's revised budget-balancing plan: the withdrawal by the city of its $140-million-ayear support of the university's senior colleges, which is to save the city $36 million in the coming budget. And Mr. Giardino urged the Governor to increase state aid in his next budget, for 1977-78. to the level of 51 percent of the university budget—an in-crease of about $60 million—as the start of even richer future

Support. Neither the Governor nor the Mayor offered comments on Mr. Giardino's letter.

Describing the university's budget cuts in the last year as "elmost catastrophic," Mr. Glardino said the Board of Higher Education had approved last week a $67 million plan "careful and orderly restructuring of the university," which included the closing or reduction of several colleges.

Now, he continued, the university still faces the "dilemma" of not knowing "the true and final amount of the hudget that will be provided to the universi-through the political pro-

A Continuing Problem

State and city officials have been meeting on the problem, which is only one of a series of nearly continuous flash points in the year-long, sometimes conflicting city and state austerity drives. Thus far no austerity drives. Thus far no progress has been reported officially, although some state aides say basic, painful shifts in state aid and university size and direction are inevitable. One city aide said the talks lous" as outsiders might think.

The hoard chairman said he deplored "irresponsible" criti-cism last week that the board had failed to produce a ful budget-cutting plan and had "hid its head in the sand." The remarks were made by Stephen Berger, the staff chair man of the Emergeocy Financial Control Board, which is the state panel that is monitoring the city's economy efforts. Mr. Berger accused the board of trying to create political pressure for more state and city aid by taking only halfway austerity measures and letting a cash crisis grow.

Mr. Berger noted that the reorganization approved by the board last week till left the university's coming budget $70 million out of bal ance, by the university's esti-mate. But Mr. Giardino's letter says, in effect, that the city and state should close this gap and that the university cannot make more cuts until it know the future shape of state and city subsidies.

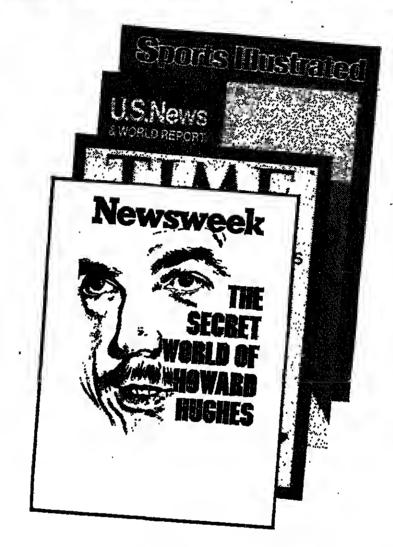

At the heart of the issue are such tender cuestions as whether undergraduate tuition will eventually be imposed open access restricted and npen access restricted and tighter State University controis enacted.

jurisdictional The Mayor says he has uni lateral power to withdraw senior college support and will do so, thereby putting pressure on the state, which has constitutional obligations for the college. The Covernor is both leges. The Governor is both chairman of the Emergency Fi-nancial Control Board, which is reviewing the Mayor's plan, and defender of his own state budget austerity drive.

Mr. Giardino is head of a semiindependent board that crit-ics accuse of unfairly resisting austerity needs that are being borne alike by all city services borne alike by all city services.
He contends, however, that city and state politicians are treating the university like a political "Ping-Pong ball" and that the politicians, not the board, should make such basic and unpopular changes as ending free tuition, if that proves nechis letter, Mr. Giardino estimated that in the last year financing from the state and city had been cut $151 million. or 28 percent, to $398.6 million of the university's current budget of $481 million. This has led to the reduction of 5,000 teachers and staff members, larger classes and work loads, and a reduced curricu-$195.7 million, he said.

When Newsweek plus one of the other newsweeklies works harder for you than Happy Days, it's time to rethink television.

If your network buy includes Happy Days, you. have good reason to be happy. You're on one of TV's top-rated shows.

Want to be even happier?

Try a print/TV mix that includes the newsweeklies.

The newsweeklies all by themselves can deliver ratings that just might surprise you.

With men 18+, Newsweek alone has a rating of 16.8—which puts it on a par with Happy Days.

Among men 18 to 49, Newsweek has a rating of 19.4—which starts to make Happy Days look sad, and most of the other top-rated shows as well.

Add Time (for an unduplicated 30.7 rating) or U.S. News & World Report (an unduplicated 24.0) or Sports Illustrated (an unduplicated 31.2) and you beat everything on TV except the Super Bowl or a World Series game.

What's more important, you're reaching a group

you just can't reach that efficiently with TV alone: people who are heavy magazine readers and relatively light TV viewers.

As a recent major study shows, it's a group that includes nearly half of all college-educated men; half of all professional and managerial men; and half of all men with household income over $15,000.

It's a group that accounts for 43.6% of the new cars purchased by men. And 53.5% of the radial tires, 49.1% of the table wine and 59.5% of the nasal sprays. -

These are the people you reach with the newsweeklies. They're the prime buyers of your products.

If you want to make your TV plan work harder for you, add the newsweeklies. Newsweek alonebecause it's the most efficient, or Newsweek in combination with one of the others.

Do something about it today—and make it a happy one.
